A Tapestry of Praise: Worshipping Together Interculturally

Join us for an inspiring online session with Revd Dr Kirk Sims, who will be sharing insights drawn from his rich experience in intercultural ministry. Wesleyan theology calls us to shape worship that is attentive to context and responsive to the communities we serve. In this webinar, we will explore the theological foundations of intercultural worship and consider how worship can be re-imagined in our increasingly multicultural churches and neighbourhoods.

Come and discover practical approaches, theological grounding, and new possibilities for nurturing intercultural faith communities.

Whether you are a church leader, a church member, or someone passionate about inclusion and justice, this webinar will offer a space for reflection and discussion.

Revd Dr Kirk Sims is a missiologist (missiology is the academic study of the Christian mission history and methodology, developing as an academic discipline in the 19th century) whose work focuses on mission, migration, and intercultural Christian community. He has served as pastor, missionary, and associate professor of intercultural studies, and has lived and worked in the United States, Ghana, the United Kingdom, Czechia, and Germany. Through his current teaching, leadership, and research roles across Europe with Global Ministries of The United Methodist Church, he engages questions of worship, belonging, and ecclesial life in increasingly multicultural contexts.
